Thank you for your valued business!

For over 40 years, it has been my mission to honor soldiers, sailors, and aviators who have served and continue to serve to protect our nation. My way of honoring these men and women is to produce the iconic clothing of their time serving. While we produce exact replicas of what these men and women wore in the field, I have also set out to interpret these styles with all the comfort and technological advancements of modern times. The very spirit of this clothing is rooted in the constant need to adapt and advance quality, comfort and functionality.

At Cockpit USA, we put quality above all else. These products were originally designed to stand up to the rigors of the field, and we feel strongly that those lessons and that real world experience should be at the forefront of our design. We use the term MIL-SPEC when referring to the design of our products, this isn't a tag line or just something we say. We not only replicate the style and look of these iconic products, we stand true to the rugged specifications used to ensure they perform in the same manor they were originally intended. We honor the craftsmanship of the products in the same spirit as the wearer.

Cockpit USA, and I personally hope you get the greatest enjoyment from your purchase. We also welcome your comments, input, recommendations, and hopefully compliments. Your product reviews on our website and Facebook help us continue to provide the best product possible.

If you are visiting New York City, we invite you to come see our products "up close and personal" at our retail showroom. Our showroom is located at 15 West 39th Street, 12th Floor, between 5th and 6th Avenue, open Monday-Friday from 10am-5pm.
